Overview

This course will provide a general introduction to the life and teachings of Siddhartha Gautama (c. 563-483 BCE) who is better known as the “Buddha,” meaning the awakened or enlightened one, and the philosophical and religious systems that have developed throughout history from those who have considered themselves his followers. Starting first with the Buddha’s life in India, the course will then move out to consider the major movements of Buddhist thought; patterns of Buddhist religious organization and practice; and the influence that followers of the Buddha have had on the development of society, politics, art, literature, and culture.

In this course you will be encouraged to combine both historical knowledge and personal reflections. The aim of the course is twofold: (1) to acquaint you with ways of thinking and being that are presently unfamiliar to you or, if you have practiced Buddhism yourself, a new way of thinking about that practice and (2) to expose you to a religious system with significant influence on the cultural, economic, and political development of a large part of the world. In our examination of Buddhist traditions, we will take care to avoid seeking an essential definition of what “Buddhism” is about. Instead, we will explore the range of beliefs and practices of those who, in different times and places, have studied the Buddha’s thought and/or worshipped the Buddha and other Buddhist figures as objects of devotion.

Course Texts

The following text is required reading for the course. It available for purchase from the university bookstore or as an e-book:

In addition, the following textbook, used for recommended reading only is available for purchase online ($38.85 new on Amazon) and will be placed on reserve at the library.

In addition, a number of readings are available on the course blackboard page [BB].

Course Assignments and Requirements

1. Section Grade (20%).
   You are required to enroll in one once-weekly discussion (recitation) section where you will be asked to discuss the course material of the past week. This portion of your grade will reflect your participation during these sections. While active participation is strongly encouraged, your grade will be weighted more on the quality than the quantity of your participation. Students who ask questions and make valuable contributions during the lecture portion of the course may also have their section grades raised.

2. Weekly Reflections (20%).
   For each week of the course when a recitation section is scheduled (with the exception of the first week), you should submit a short informal reflection (100-200 words) on the subject matter of the week. You should e-mail your reflection to your TA no later than 12 noon on the Thursday of the week assigned. Please write your reflection in the body of the e-mail message and not as an attachment. You should also bring a printed, handwritten, or electronic copy of your reflection with you to section for your reference as it may be used in discussion.

   Your reflection should feature your original analysis on the material covered during the past week and must consider at least one element from lecture and one element from at least one of the readings. You should make your references to lectures and readings as specific as possible. Reflections will be graded on both the strengths of your insights and your familiarity with the course readings and lectures for the week. As the course develops, you are also expected to make connections between recurring lessons and concepts as they arise in different cultural settings where the Buddha’s teachings have spread.

   The main purpose of your reflections is to generate discussion in Friday’s section. Therefore you will not receive credit for your reflections if you are absent from section. Per university policy, students may be excused from section only for one of the following three criteria: (1) serious illness; (2) bereavement; (3) NCAA athletic participation (with signed letter from athletic coordinator only). Students missing sections under these criteria will be required to make up the sections at a later time. If you believe you fall under these criteria, please contact your TA. We regret that participation in other extracurricular activities, including sorority and fraternity recruitment events, does not constitute grounds for excused absences.

   A list of sample reflections from the last time this course was taught will be distributed and discussed before the first reflection is due.
3. Quizzes (10%)
A series of twelve short multiple-choice quizzes will be conducted at randomly chosen dates throughout the semester at the end of lectures. The material covered on the quizzes will be taken from the lecture that has just been delivered. The lowest two quiz scores will be dropped.

4. One short analytical paper (3-4 pages) (5%)
You will be asked to answer a question from our initial discussion of the Buddha’s life and teachings from the first two weeks of class. Question distributed in class: Mon., Jan. 26. Paper due in class: Wed., Feb. 4.

5. A case study report of Buddhist practice (5 pages) due April 13 (15%). In this requirement, you will read on your own one of the following books describing the life of Buddhists in the world today:

These books will be placed on reserve at Bird Library or you may order them online. Your paper will consist of a description of the book and your response to a set of questions asking you to relate the contents of the book to themes in the course. Because of the time that it will take your book to arrive, you must select one by Friday, January 30, and inform your TA of your choice.

A more detailed assignment related to the book you have chosen will be distributed during class on Monday, March 30.

6. Midterm (15%) and final (15%) take-home examinations (5 pages each). In these examinations you will choose from a series of questions asking you to discuss course lectures, readings, films, and class discussions. Questions for the midterm examination will be distributed in class on Monday, Feb. 16. Questions for the final examination will be distributed in class on Wednesday, April 22. The midterm paper is due in class on Monday, March 2 and the final paper will be due to Hall of Languages 501 at the conclusion of the final examination period for the class on Wednesday, May 6 at 10 a.m.
Please note that there are no in-class examinations for the course. You will not be asked to memorize and regurgitate terminology. You will be expected to think through and use key terms and concepts very precisely in your written assignments.

In order to receive credit for this course, you must complete and hand in all four paper assignments.

University Requirements and Recommendations

Academic Integrity

Syracuse University’s Academic Integrity Policy holds students accountable for the integrity of the work they submit. Students should be familiar with the policy and know that it is their responsibility to learn about course-specific expectations, as well as about university policy. The university policy governs appropriate citation and use of sources, the integrity of work submitted in exams and assignments, and the veracity of signatures on attendance sheets and other verification of participation in class activities. The policy also prohibits students from submitting the same written work in more than one class without receiving written authorization in advance from both instructors. The presumptive penalty for a first offense by an undergraduate student is course failure, accompanied by a transcript notation indicating that the failure resulted from a violation of Academic Integrity Policy. For more information and the complete policy, see http://academicintegrity.syr.edu.

Students with Disabilities / Special Needs

If you believe that you need accommodations for a disability, please contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS), http://disabilityservices.syr.edu, located at 804 University Avenue, room 309, or call 315-443-4498 for an appointment to discuss your needs and the process for requesting accommodations. ODS is responsible for coordinating disability-related accommodations and will issue students with documented disabilities “Accommodation Authorization Letters,” as appropriate. Since accommodations may require early planning and generally are not provided retroactively, please contact ODS as soon as possible.

Syracuse University does not have non-instructional days for any religious holiday and students must notify instructors by the end of the second week of classes when they will be observing their religious holiday(s).

SU’s religious observances policy, found at http://supolicies.syr.edu/emp_ben/religious_observance.htm, recognizes the diversity of faiths represented among the campus community and protects the rights of students, faculty, and staff to observe religious holy days according to their tradition. Under the policy, students are provided an opportunity to make up any examination, study, or work requirements that may be missed due to a religious observance provided they notify their instructors before the end of the second week of classes.
