

Syracuse University

College of Arts & Sciences

Religion

The Joseph and Amelia Borgognoni Lecture in Catholic Theology and Religion and Society

Kaya Oakes

Nones, Dones, Seekers and Doubters: Navigating Religion in a Secular Age

October 9, 2017

7 p.m.

Maxwell Auditorium

Kaya Oakes is the author of four books, including “The Nones Are Alright: A New Generation of Believers, Seekers and Those In-Between” (Orbis Books, 2015) and “Radical Reinvention: An Unlikely Return to the Catholic Church” (Counterpoint Press, 2012). A senior correspondent at Religion Dispatches, she also is a contributing writer at America: The Jesuit Review and a contributing editor at Killing the Buddha. Her work has appeared in many other print and online publications, including Sojourners, Commonweal, Narratively, Foreign Policy, The Guardian and the Religion News Service, and on the public radio show and podcast “On Being.” She is a writing lecturer at the University of California, Berkeley.

Questions: Deborah Pratt,
315.443.3863, dpratt@syr.edu thecollege.syr.edu

Presented by the Department of Religion in the College of Arts & Sciences.

Paid parking available in Irving Garage (on Irving Ave. and Stadium Place)
For detailed parking information: parking.syr.edu/irving-garage-directions